DesignCollab designs solutions for the environment drawing upon its collective resources, experience and skills acquired over the years working in the domestic and the international design industry. It endeavours to design solutions that are specific to the needs of the milieu, keeping the experience of it, timeless.

Interior Design is increasingly becoming a tool to design new user experiences in a built environment. It encompasses everything that is exciting and the experimental in new materials, forms, lighting, user's interaction and perception of the space and the function that the space serves. This discipline is truly in its renaissance period with the emergence of new design tools, materials and processes. With our multi- disciplinary approach, we at DesignCollab are in the process of creating this new experience.
